EASTERN DATES TO NOVEMBER 21.

EASTERN STATES.

Insurance Matters.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The National Board of Fire Underwriters met at Underwriters' Hall to-day. Delegations were present from all the leading insurance companies of the country. Charles E. Montgomery, General Agent of the Board, said that since his appointment six months ago he had organized 600 local boards, and rated 1,432 different localities The present exigency required an advance in rates and a standard rule of tariff He said that not only framed but Mansard roofs would require the deliberations of the session, but several qualities of granite would have to be criticised. He intimated that it might be advisable to place practically a prohibitory rate on framed and Mansard roofs The Board will discuss the matter suggested.

Arrested on Suspicion

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 It is reported that the police have arrested a man suspected of the robbery and murder of Mr. Pierce of Louisville. On the night of his disappearance he had been visiting Martin Knight, a clerk on Brandt street, and he is known to have had about $500 in his possession He also carried an old fashioned gold watch and chain, and two handsome pearl studs. It is believed that some professional criminals were aware of his practice of carrying large sums of money about him, and he was waylaid, murdered and robbed by them

Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Nov. 21 Among the propositions presented in the Constitutional Convention to day, was one increasing the term of office of Governor to four years, extending the term of State Senators to four years, and of Representatives to two years, with a biennial session of the Legislature.

Annexation Again.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The Commercial Advertiser has information that many colonists in British North America are preparing to hold a mass meeting in favor of annexation to the United States. There are said to be two organizations in the Dominion whose aim is annexation.

The Counterfeit Coupons.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The authorities have failed to discover the counterfeiters of the U. P. Income bonds One hundred and eighty coupons, purporting to be from ten thousand dollar bonds, have been paid.

Lost Jus: $5,000.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The widow of A. D Putnam, who was killed by Forester with a car hook, has brought suit against the Seventh Avenue Railway to recover $5,000 for the loss of her husband, the counsel contending that the Company was bound to protect him from injury while on their car.

Louisiana Politics.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21.—The newly elected District Judges were inducted into office to day, only one of the Judges of the Eighth District—objecting. The Governor has issued a proclamation, convening the newly elected Legislature in special session on Dec. 9th. Harper, the new Civil Sheriff, with an order from all the District Courts, except the Fourth, recognizing him as Civil Sheriff, applied to Sauvenet, the old sheriff, for possession of his office. Sauvenet refused, and was put out by force. He afterwards applied to the Supreme Court for an order restraining the Distr Judges from giving orders interfering with him in the discharge of his duties as Civil Sheriff of the Supreme Court, which was refused.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Miscellaneous Items.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The Committee on Appropriations are considering the Legislative, Executive and Judicial appropriation bills.

Colonel W. Penn, Clerk to Third Auditor Bradford, has sued John W. Forney for libel, claiming $10,000 damages.

The President is at work on his message. It is to be printed in advance of its transmission, but as heretofore manuscript copies will be furnished to the press simultaneously with its reading in Congress.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

From Paris.

PARIS, Nov. 21—Evening.—At the meeting of deputies of the Left, to-day, the committee which had been appointed to draw up the platform of policy, made a report They recommend the support of the party in the Assembly of the following measures The appointment of a parliamentary committee of thirty to deliberate upon and report to the Assembly organic laws best fitted to insure the working of a legal Government and republic; the prolongation of Thiers' term of office to four years; the institution of a Vice President; the creation of a Second Chamber in the Assembly; ministerial responsibility, and the harmoniousness of republican institutions. The report was unanimously approved.

The members of the extreme Left endorse Gambetta in saying that the dissolution of the National Assembly is the sole remedy for the present difficulties.

THE GREAT FIRE IN BOSTON.

[Special Dispatch to the New York Times.]

BOSTON, Nov. 10.—I am now prepared to give you a connected and detailed narrative of the terrible fire that has swept through the very heart of our city, and though my labors during the past twenty four hours have nearly exhausted my energies, I feel sure that I shall be able to continue writing until I shall have furnished your readers with a comprehensive review of the scenes that have been enacted during the progress of the fire, now happily under full control.

The entire night was a dreadful one, and few of us who were witnesses to the destruction of the business portion of our city will ever forget it. We now have some conception of the calamity that befell Chicago, and are thankful that the disaster has not destroyed the whole of old Boston.

ORIGIN OF THE FIRE.

As I telegraphed you early this morning, when the full scope of the fire had been discovered, the flames which commenced the awful work of destruction were first discovered about 7½ o'clock last night in the engine-room of the large four-story granite store, situated at the corner of Summer and Kingston streets, occupied by Tebbets, Baldwin & Davis, wholesale dry goods dealers. The fire must have been smouldering for some time, as when it was first discovered, the flames had gained such volume as doomed the entire building. There was scarcely any wind stirring when the first alarm was given, and though the light of the fire was soon a bright one, nobody imagined that it would prove to be so appalling a disaster. When the firemen arrived on the ground they found that the flames had reached the fourth story of the building, and before they got to work with their engines every window vomited forth smoke and flame, the heat being so intense that, for the moment, they had to retreat. Still the firemen persevered, and got several large streams of water playing on the burning building before any of the adjoining stores caught fire. The buildings in the vicinity were all of granite, four stories high, each surmounted with a Mansard roof. The detached splinters flew readily, as the air was heated by the terrible heat, and the flames began licking the Mansard roof on the opposite side, for above the reach of the streams directed toward it from all quarters. The fire was constantly in the air, and one building after another caught on the roof, and the flames skipped lightly along from one window sill to another, so that in less than 30 minutes it became evident that the whole city in one direction was at the mercy of the flames.

PROGRESS OF THE FLAMES.

As the firemen were manfully standing before the fire, their clothing being kept wet by an occasional jet from the reserve engines, it was suddenly noticed that the large stone building standing on the opposite side of the street, in Otis place, had caught fire at the cornice of the Mansard roof. The building was occupied by Mallyn, Mullen & Kims, Harding Brothers & Co., Bowen, Moore & Co., George Lode, Carter & Co., and Conant Bros., all wholesale dealers in dry and fancy goods. As the burning cornice was too high for the streams to reach, it continued to blaze fiercely, and so spread the fire in an alarmingly swift manner. The heat, before oppressive, now became absolutely unbearable, and so the flames forced back the firemen who were so gallantly endeavoring to subdue them. Inch by inch the fire progressed through this second edifice, until it was filled with a fierce volume of flame, and the situation became perilous for that part of the business section of the city.

At that moment Mr. Dandrell, the Chief of the Fire Department, saw that the second alarm he had ordered to be sounded would not bring sufficient assistance to the scene. He accordingly sounded a third alarm, and quickly followed it by another and another until the entire force of the Department had been summoned and was on its way to the seat of the fire.

THE CITY ALARMED.

The constant tolling of the fire-bells, and the frequent repetition of the several alarms, naturally roused the people, who, on issuing from their dwellings, found the entire city lighted up by a terrible glare. Church spires and other prominent buildings stood revealed in the night air even more distinctly than at noonday. The spectacle was a brilliant one, yet none dreamed at that early hour that the entire city would before midnight be in a state of almost uncontrollable panic. The huge volume of flame and smoke that continued to rise rapidly from the burning stores, betrayed the fact that the fire was in the very heart of the business district. Accordingly merchants began to arrive on the scene at an early hour, in the hope that they would find their own premises safe and out of danger. In this nearly all were disappointed, for as the hours slipped by it was evident that the flames had got beyond immediate control, so that it was impossible to imagine where they would stop. The scene at 10 o'clock was a grand one, despite the destruction visible on every hand. The fierce, fitful gusts of water that had been thrown upon the burning houses only to fall impotent and disappear in the gutters. The heat was so great that the blocks of granite composing the walls of the stores already on fire minally began to explode, the fragments being scattered in every direction. Roofs fell in with a crash every moment, carrying with them the floors beneath, heavily freighted as they were with large stocks of valuable goods. As the interiors thus fell a prey to the element, walls began to bulge and quiver, finally toppling to the pavement in huge masses of heated and blistered stone.

EFFORTS OF THE FIREMEN.

Almost hopeless before the fury of the flames, the firemen maintained their ground as far as it was possible for human beings to do. They erected huge barricades out of the fragments lying so plentiful about them, and endeavored to carry their hose within effectual distance. But the effort proved as abortive as all others, for the barricades first became heated, then scorched, and finally caught fire, thus giving additional food for the flames to feed upon. By this time, Beebe's block, a splendid five-story granite building, had caught fire and been destroyed. The Mansard roof was naturally the first to ignite, as the upper air was full of heat and flame. Ten minutes after Beebe's edifice had followed the fate of its predecessors, it was found that the stores in Devonshire street were in great danger, as showers—there is no word so apposite—of burning pieces of goods were descending upon the roofs. A few moments more and these buildings were in the vortex of flame. Again roofs fell and walls warped and cracked, and the scene of destruction was extended to its limits.

The wind, hitherto a light one, having gradually grown in strength as the fire progressed, became at length a gale, the flames seemingly paying the effect to create currents of their own. Words fail me in describing the appalling scene at this stage of the fire. Building after building fell passively before the flames, and it seemed an impossible task to attempt to check their progress. Whole blocks were on fire, and the very streets were full of flames, as immense stocks of goods had been there piled up in readiness for removal, only to fall into the grasp of the element that was surging forward toward the water front in resistless fury.

NEW TERRORS.

The Babel of confusion assumed a new phase about 11 o'clock, for the tenement houses at the upper end of Federal street began to catch fire, and the scene was intensified by the affrighted actions and loud cries of the inmates of these crowded edifices. Flying hither and thither in their frenzied terror, men, women and children only added to the confusion without the least helping themselves. Under ordinary circumstances, many of the incidents witnessed at that point would have been deemed ludicrous, but the intense excitement prevailing among all classes, prevented any such impression. Furniture was carried into the streets only to be broken and abandoned, from every window were thrown perishable articles, causing new dangers for those on the pavements. Pale faces rendered still more ghastly by the glare of blazing buildings peeped from high windows, in abject terror at the prospect. Loud cries for help were frequently heard, and it is quite certain that many of these piteous appeals were wholly in vain, for many lives were undoubtedly lost, all traces of the missing persons having utterly disappeared.

The fire having done its worst in Federal street, by causing all the large wool storehouses, crammed as they were with immense stocks of valuable goods, in anticipation of the winter trade, the flames passed on to the paper warehouses, which went down unresisting in a few minutes. A New Plan for Public Library.

A bill recently introduced in the Legislature of Vermont, presents the question of popular education and a new form. It proposes to supplement the common schools, by a system of public libraries. The plan of the proposed measure is, an appropriation by the State of a sum of money, for the establishment and maintenance of libraries in all the towns of the State. The money is to be distributed among the different towns in the ratio of their respective populations to the entire population of the State. Every town is required to provide a suitable building, or room for the purposes of the library, and appoint a Librarian who shall have the management of the library, subject to such rules and regulations as the State Board of Trustees created by the act, shall prescribe. The librarians of the towns are to report at stated periods to the State Librarian. The money appropriated to each town must be expended by it within three months after it is received, or the State Treasurer may recover it back from the town, with costs.

The amount of the proposed appropriation is $150,000. The towns have exclusive control of the expenditure of the money, but they must expend it, and that for books alone. The State, through its trustees, prescribes the rules and regulations for the government of the local libraries, but the towns choose their own librarians. The towns are also empowered to levy a tax for the purpose of enlarging their libraries, and to receive private contributions for the same purpose.

The bill was referred to a select committee of the Senate, who reported in favor of its passage, setting forth at length their reasons therefor. The report says: "Most of the towns in the State are destitute of public library advantages; that the people generally are not provided with suitable books for reading, that in many localities they are not as well supplied as the convicts in our prisons or reform schools."

Remarking upon the evil effect produced upon young minds by the reading of newspapers only, the committee say truthfully: "The opinion is well-founded that while the present almost exclusive newspaper reading stimulates business enterprises to its utmost limit, it at the same time tends to a dwarfed condition of the higher mental powers and to superficial acquirements."

The common schools teach the youth of the country how to read, but not what to read. The habit of light and superficial reading, both as to matter and manner, is the almost invariable result of being confined mainly to the periodical literature of the day, as is the case with most persons who have access to no public library. The private collections of books are too few, and too limited in the extent and variety of their contents, to supply the place of public libraries. Thus reason the committee; and they are, therefore, of the opinion that such a system as that proposed by the bill referred to, is the only plain and adequate remedy for the evil.

The London Money Market.

The stringency of the money market, is not confined to the Pacific Coast, nor to the United States. It is felt very severely in London, rates in the Bank of England having advanced, within sixty days from three and a half to six per cent. The London Economist had been urging the advance for some time, and when it was raised on the 18th of September to four per cent., a farther advance was declared to be inevitable. But when in the first week of November, it was put up to six, the Economist attacked the management of the bank and asserted the policy they were pursuing was ruinous. The Boston Advertiser, in a very well considered article upon the condition of the money market, expresses the opinion that neither the bank nor its critics fully understood the situation, or comprehended the course and extent of the difficulty. It says: The facts, judged at this distance of time, seem to be that the bank at first, and later its critics, miscalculated the full effect of the German funds held in London. The harvest-time and holiday-making scarcity of money is of steady and regular recurrence. Had this alone been the event to be guarded against, the bank might properly have left the discount rate at three and a half per cent. until late in September. But it was not the only danger to the money market. The directors, must have known that the early maturity of the bills on London paid to Germany by France involved a possible contingency to be provided against, but they undoubtedly did not believe that it was a source of danger. The financial writers did not agree with them. The necessity of being on guard was pointed out. The bills began to mature and the bank began to advance its rates. Unfortunately it was working behind time. The successive additions to the rate had but slight effect. When the six per cent. rate was established the Government had apparently become thoroughly alarmed, but then the Economist and those who thought with it understood the danger that was impending. They did not know what the bank directors may have known, that the German Government was calling in the gold and silver coin on the bills on London, recoining it, and holding it in its vaults. In this way up to a fortnight ago the Berlin mint had struck gold coins to the value of more than fifteen millions sterling, none of which had been emitted, and most of which had gone from England, either directly or by way of other countries. In the nine months ending with September the total imports of gold into England fell off two millions and the exports increased by four millions, as compared with the movement during a corresponding period in 1871. The result of the action of the German Government was the withdrawal of seventy-five millions of dollars in specie from the money market. It is also reported that the same government has refused to receive French five frame pieces and Austrian florins, thus stopping instantaneously the circulation of nine million pounds sterling more of coin. This double disturbance, unfelt at first, but now felt with terrible force, is what has caused the alarming scarcity of money which even the temptation of high rates will not bring back to its accustomed channels. It seems to be a critical time for business men, but firmness and courage may avert a calamity.

It is proposed in the Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention, to increase the term of office of the Governor and State Senators to four years, make the term for members of the House of Representatives two years and hold only biennial sessions of the Legislature. The object of these provisions is, no doubt, to make the Constitution of that State conform to that of Oregon.

London has resolved to do up Stanley, the discoverer of Dr Livingstone, in such a package that he cannot possibly be lost, and will not be likely to decay very soon. This is to be done with a piece of vellum, which is to have written or printed on it, an expression of the gratitude of the good people of 'famous London town' to the said Stanley, for his enterprise and perseverance in discovering the great discoverer. Such a testimonial will, doubtless, be very gratifying, as it is very flattering, to Mr Stanley. It is a great thing to discover the sources of the Nile, what shall we say of the discovery of the man who made that discovery. The action of the Londoners is generous. Stanley is an American, and it is a very great reach of generosity for Mr. Podsnap to see anything good on this side of the water.

It is not stated what effect this presentation is expected to have upon the deluge of Stanley-Livingstone literature with which the English speaking world has been deluged of late.

It is announced that meetings are holding in the Dominion for the agitation of the question of annexation to the United States. We cannot state definitely how often this announcement has been made before, but it is certainly within bounds to pronounce this the hundredth time. There is, probably, just about as much significance in the proceedings now telegraphed, as there has been in those agitations of the same sort that have gone before it. This annexation subsidy is a chronic disease in a few minds on both sides of the line between British North America and the United States, which breaks out afresh whenever there is a dearth of other objects to engross public attention. It never, however, attacks any considerable number of persons at the same time, and is therefore not likely to have a very serious effect.

The Yreka Journal of the 20th inst., has this, which our citizens will acknowledge to be an item of news:

The Oregon Legislature, which adjourned two or three weeks ago, appropriated $4,000 towards defraying the expenses of its Centennial Commission. The State has thus been among the first in the Union to encourage the projected National exhibition.

Wasco county gave 392 votes for Grant, 314 for Greeley and 145 for O'Conor. Grant's plurality, 78. Grant's plurality in the State is not less than 3,800.

THE TERRITORIES.

The Walla Walla Statesman claims that McFadden's majority in the Territory is over 1,000.

The trial of Kirkland for the murder of Geo. Campbell, was in progress in Olympia on the 20th.

The Unitarian Society at Olympia netted about $90 by a concert last Tuesday night. This society are talking of building a church.

At the late election in Washington Territory, Clallam county gave Garfielde 63 votes and McFadden 48. Snohomish county gave Garfielde 103 and McFadden 159.

Geo. McConaha, Republican candidate for Prosecuting Attorney for the Third Judicial District in Washington Territory is elected by a very large majority. His opponent was Jacob Hoover.

The steamer Politkofsky, Captain Guindon, after an entire overhauling, refitting and repainting, came over from Port Madison on Saturday for inspection. In her new dress of paint she looks decidedly handsome.

Governor Ferry of Washington Territory, has commissioned Joseph M. Snow, of Island county, as Notary Public; and Ramon de Zaldo, of San Francisco, Commissioner of Deeds for the Territory, to reside at San Francisco.

The cabin of Mr. Sylvester Symons, on the Chehalis, W. T., was destroyed by fire on last Friday morning, together with all of its contents. Mr. Symons prepared his breakfast at an early hour, by a fire in front of the cabin, and then went away on business, on his return the cabin was entirely destroyed.

The Union and Kansas Pacific Railroad Companies are before the District Court at Denver. The Kansas Pacific brings suit for $1,000,000 against the Union Pacific for failure to comply with the provisions of an act of Congress providing that no discrimination shall be made by one road against the other, and also oblige the Union Pacific to comply with the said provisions. The attorneys for both companies are at Denver, conducting the case, the Union Pacific pleading that the Court has no jurisdiction without their voluntary appearance.

The Intelligencer of the 18th says: "On Friday last Sheriff Wyckoff brought over from Port Gamble the first and second mates of the ship Elizabeth Kimball, whom he had arrested under a warrant issued out of the United States District Court, for an assault and battery upon a seaman, for which the latter claimed damages in the sum of five thousand dollars. Upon the parties getting here, and after a conference between their respective attorneys a compromise was effected, upon payment of a nominal sum, and the proceedings dismissed."

Let Us Have Peace

We desire to say a few candid words to the people of the South. The result of the most extraordinary political canvass just closed clearly demonstrates that you have made a mistake in trusting your fate to the keeping of the Democratic party. You could have adjusted all differences between yourselves and the Government by accepting the fourteenth amendment as a basis of settlement. You were inclined to do so, but you were prevented by the Northern Democracy. They saw a road to power through a union between you and themselves, and you can hold them responsible for whatever you may find objectionable in subsequent legislation, upon the question of reconstruction.

You allowed your prejudices against Northern men to be aroused and stimulated by that party until you adopted a course that has driven from your States thousands of the best of them, and kept away thousands more and millions of money that would ere this have been engaged in the development of your impoverished region; you allowed that party to stimulate your prejudices against the colored men until you adopted a course which has alienated them from you and driven them to find advisers and leaders among white men who were strangers to you. If they have trusted bad men and put them forward for positions is it not your fault? You have resented every measure looking to their freedom education, and enfranchisement. Had you conquered your prejudices and aided them to rise, and instructed them how to exercise their newly-acquired rights, instead of endeavoring to prevent them from exercising them by force and intimidation, you could have had their confidence and esteem, and been their counselors and leaders.

The Democratic party of the North has failed and your policy has gone down to the same grave. Will you not now commence building school-houses for the colored people instead of burning them down? Invite and encourage men from other States to come among you instead of driving them away? Instruct and aid the colored men in qualifying themselves for the performance of their duties as citizens instead of endeavoring to force them to relinquish their rights? Will you not now acknowledge the fact that the result of the war made us a nation, and accept your share in shaping its destiny, instead of endeavoring to undo what has been done and trying to unsettle all the questions which were adjusted by the war?—Washington Chronicle.

SATURDAY MORNING, NOV 23, 1872

CITY.

KILLED DROWNED —A man named Michael Cash was drowned yesterday morning opposite Co lumbia City, while on his way to this city, on board the steamer Fannie Troup Cashel and a friend, whose name we did not ascertain came on board at some point down the river. The man who was drowned was considerably intoxi cated when he came on board He did not prove to be a pugilist, but being an old deck hand, made himself quite familiar with the hands on the boat, and persisted in offering his services at the wheel. He was warned several times by the Captain to keep away from the edge of the boat, but to no purpose Cashel continued to walk to and fro, and the deck hands receive and discharge freight, although they repeatedly declined his services. The steamer touched at Columbia City to receive some freight, and Cashel, to make himself useful, seized hold of one end of the gang plank to help draw it on deck, just as the boat was backing from the wharf The man was directed to him to get out of the way and let the gang plank pass. The advice was unheeded, and the consequence was that Cashel's foot slipped from the wet deck, and he fell on his back at the edge of the boat and into the river. Without seeming to realize his position fully, so as to make any effort to save himself, he slowly rolled over the boat guard, and fell into the water, feet first. The Captain was in the pilot house at the moment, and saw Cashel go overboard. He instantly gave the signal to reverse the wheel and stop the boat, which was obeyed at once. The headway of the steamer could not be stayed for a moment, and the boat drifted a little way from Cashel, who was struggling in the water. A boat was lowered at once, and a life preserver cast to the drowning man But he was so exhausted that he could not avail of his use The boat in the small boat rowed with might and main to reach the place in time to save Cashel's life, but as they were almost in reach of him, he sank from sight in the deep channel and was seen no more Every possible effort was made to recover him, but it was of no avail Search was made for the body, but the water was deep and the dragging hooks on board, the efforts were abandoned, and the boat came on to Port land. The deceased was aged about 35 years and is married. He was accompanied by his son, who came on with the steamer to this city. It was said that Cashel had considerable money about his person—his partner estimating the sum between four and five hundred dollars and this may account for his sudden dis appearance under the water, as scarcely three minutes elapsed from the time he rolled into the river until he drowned. He had been employed by some of the works or at a logging camp down the river We were unable to learn whether he has relatives here or not.

THE NEW TUG BOAT COMPANY —Articles of in corporation of the "Columbia and Wallamet Tug Company" were executed yesterday The incorporators are Benj. F Smith, C M Car ter, J K D Gray, W. J. Becannon and W K Smith The objects of the company are the tow ing of vessels on the Columbia and Wallamet rivers and their tributaries and at the bar of the Columbia river. The articles also specify the towing of freight and passengers, but we under stand it is not contemplated to engage in that business further than may be necessary or inci dental to the towing and lightering business. The principal business office of the company is to be at Astoria In capital stock is $100,000 We understand it is the intention of the company to have a tug built at an early day a large and powerful tug boat for use at the mouth of the Co lumbia river.

NEW BUILDING.—Plans and specifications for a two story brick edifice, with a stone foundation, have been completed, and the contract for its erec tion awarded Mr. Ira Goodenough. The build ing is to be erected by Mr. R. Perkins, and will occupy a site at the corner of North Front and A streets, river side. The building, according to plans, will be 50x100 feet and three stories in height, including the basement. The foundation walls will be put in while the river is low, and the building finished early next season. The walls are to be 18 feet in the clear below, and 16 feet above; roof self supporting, iron front, and all the modern improvements.

FOR SAN FRANCISCO.—The steamer John L Stephens, which will sail this morning at 5 o'clock, will carry away the following passengers: James Allen, Walter Moffett, A Clausen, C H Birnie, Geo Brown, O Dunbar, M Eisner, James Gilday, James Johnson, Miss E Griffin, Mrs W Hogan, J H Beadle, J C Brady, W H Hogan, Thomas, Geo A Shephard, wife and child, A Lewis, J B Rowell, W J Patterson, Wm Davis, Mrs Gilman and three children, Mrs S M Haworth, Miss Belle Hanson, J C Weatherell, Miss and wife, H Schnaufer, A J Dufor, Jeff Martin, and 30 in the steerage

FOR ASSOTIN —We are informed by the Su perintendent of the Insane Asylum, that divine service will be held in the chapel of the institution for the benefit of the unfortunate inmates, every Sunday. Invitations are extended to the various churches of this city once each week, and ser vices will be held alternately by them By this act the task of imparting spiritual instruc tion to these people is distributed among the min isters of the city.

STREET LEVELING —A number of workmen are employed yesterday in distributing large quantities of sand between the ties and tracks on Front side, between the depot and J street The stretch of the track is used more than any portion along the road, in switching off freight trains, and the Company deem it best to have the road bed ballasted as so on as practicable.

THE CUT OFF.—A heavily loaded truck ran into the fire hydrant at the corner of Front and Ankeny yesterday, and broke the casting Distance below the sidewalk Fortunately the iron was broken off above its connection with the water mains, or else the street would have been converted to a small lake before the hole could have been repaired

THE SNAKE.—The steamer Jesse M. Nye arrived from Astoria, Thursday evening, early midnight The cause of the detention was a broken shaft. She was taken to the dock yesterday morning for repairs, and the delay has been placed on the line temporarily

A FEAR.—A team left standing at the east end yesterday morning, took fright, and ran The horses became scared at the escape of steam from the safety valve of a locomotive They ran some distance before being stopped by Mr. Nodanagle.

SALT.—All the salt has been discharged from the bark Haworth except about 50 tons. The vessel is now ready to receive wheat to dry ballast, and will be taken on board to act as ballast, the remainder of the salt loan be removed to be sold.

THE FOUNDATION OF.—The U. S Marshal has taken possession of the brewery at the corner of Main and Main streets yesterday. The brewery is the property of Steiner & Gallaghan, who were adjudged bankrupts by the Register.

BRICK.—A new building is in process of erection in the rear of the Lutheran Church, on Front street. The building will be occupied, when finished, by the pastor of that church, the Rev. Mr. Weaver, and his family.

HOUSE SERVICES.—We are requested to state that Rev. A. H. Friedrichsen will preach on Sunday next at 11 o'clock, in the Nor wegian language, at the Evangelical Lutheran Church, East Portland.

TO SPRINGVILLE.—Work on the new road to Springville (the old one was totally de stroyed some months ago) is progressing rapidly and will be completed probably by the first of next month.

THE SUMMIT —Regular passenger trains are now over the summit of Rice's Hill, where a track was laid some time since. The trains are now running further south than Oakland.

THE JUNCTION.—A portion of the materials of the Oregonian—two—and McCormick's Al ley—are now in the hands of the printers, and will be issued as soon as practicable

PLANS SELECTED —The County Court will hold a special meeting to day for the purpose of selecting from the several plans submitted a design for an iron railing, to be placed on the top of the stone wall around the Court House block

RUMORED —It is rumored on the streets that Mr Dolph B Hannph has disposed of all his right, title and interest in and to the Caruthers' land estate which has been the subject of so much vexatious litigation

NEW CHAT —The Unitarian Chapel at the cor ner of Seventh and Yamhill streets, is receiving a new coat of paint The exterior appearance of the building will be greatly enhanced by the use of the painter's brush.

TO BE DELIVERED —An opinion will be de livered this morning by his Honor Judge M P Deady, in the case In re Francis and Buchanan, on the meeting of the U S District Court

TO OAK POINT —The tug Ben Holladay will go down the river this morning to tow the bark Wolfgot to Oak Point, at which point she will receive a cargo for San Francisco

U S DISTRICT COURT —The U S. District Court will convene this morning at 10 o'clock In the case of United States vs Eli Paine, the de fendant will be arraigned to plead

RAILROAD IRON —By an exchange we learn that the ship Lapwing is on the way to Kalama having on board 10,000 rails of iron, and can be expected soon at that port

LECTURE —Miss Edith O'Gorman will lecture at the new Masonic Hall next Monday evening This will be the last lecture Miss O'Gorman will deliver in this city

PLANKED —We learn that the contract has been let, for the planking of South Front street from Harrison to Lincoln, and work will very soon be commenced

MOTION DAY —The Circuit Court will convene to day at 9 o'clock A. M Most of the day will be devoted to the hearing and deciding of mo tions

HAULED UP —The steamer Annie Stewart, now undergoing repairs, has been hauled up along side Moffett & Stephens' wharf

POSTPONED —The steamer did not sail last even ing as announced. She was detained until this morning.

Be on the Safe Side.

We hold health and life by a frail tenure, and not to protect them to the best of our ability would seem to argue a deficiency of common sense The scorching winds and cold rains of spring, the tropic heat of summer, the noxious vapors of autumn, and the paralyzing temperature of winter, are all inimicable to those finely adjusted and sensitive pieces of mechanism we call our bodies Each season has its peculiar perils, and the fall is perhaps as prolific of dangerous disorders as any of them, for at this season fevers and bowel complaints are very apt to take an epidemic form As a preventive of this class of diseases, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters cannot be too warmly recommended In it are combined five essential medical properties It is a tonic, at once powerful and wholesome; a stimulant pure and undefiled, an aperient, mild and painless; an anti bilious agent of marvellous efficacy, and a general regulating medicine without an equal in the pharmacopœia These five distinct properties operating together in perfect harmony, produce a condition of the system somewhat analogous to that brought about by a course of pugilistic training. In other words, as judicious physical training hardens the flesh and renders it comparatively flat proof, so does this marvellous invigorant increase the capability of the organs of the body to resist the more indirect and insidious assaults of disease It imparts new elasticity and strength to the vital machinery, and those who use it as a preventive of intermittent fever, dysentery, diarrhœa, dyspepsia rheumatism, and other ailments common at this season, may walk fearless through an atmosphere impregnated with the morbid elements which give rise to those maladies.

PLANTATION BITTERS!

S. T.—1860—X.

This wonderful vegetable restorative is the shoot-anchor of the feeble and debilitated. As a tonic and cordial for the aged and languid it has no equal among stomachics. As a remedy for the nervous weakness to which women are especially subject, it is superseding every other stimulant. In all climates, tropical, temperate or frigid, it acts as a specific in every species of disorder which undermines the bodily strength and breaks down the animal spirits.

In Memoriam.

Prentice, of the Louisville Journal, said of the following beautiful lines "One might almost wish to die, if he knew that so beautiful a tributeas this would be written to his memory."

On the bosom of a river
Where the sun unloosed his quiver,
And the star-light streamed forever,
Rested a rose-light and free.
Morning dew drops hung like manna
On the bright folds of her banner,
While the zephyrs woo to fan her
Softly to the radiant sea

At her prow a girl beaming
In the flush of youth stood leaning
And he was in glorious seeming,
Like an angel from above
Through his hair the breezes sported,
And as on the wave he skated
Oft that girl's angel thrusted
Wanted lays of hope and love

Through those locks as blithely flowing
Buds of laurel bloom were blowing,
And his hands anon were throwing
Music from a lyre of gold
Swiftly down the stream he glided,
Soft the purple wave divided,
And a rainbow arch abided
On his canvas' snowy fold.

Anxious hearts, with fond devotion,
Watched him sailing to the ocean—
Prayed that never will commotion
'Mid the elements might rise.
And he seemed some young Apollo,
Charming summer winds to follow,
While the water flags' corolla
Trembled to his music sighs

But those purple waves enchanted
Rolled he alone a city haunted,
By an awful spell that daunted
Every comer to her shore
Night shades rank the air encumbered,
And pale marble statues numbered
Where the lotus eaters slumbered,
And awoke to life no more

Then there rushed with lightning quickness
O'er his face a mortal sickness,
And the dews in fearful thickness
Gathered o'er his temples fair,
And there swept a dying murmur
Through the lovely southern summer
As the beauteous pilot comer
Perished by that city there

Still rolls on that radiant river,
And the sun unbinds his quiver,
And the star-light streams forever
On its bosom as before
But that vessel's rainbow banner
Greets no more the gay sevanna,
And that pilot's lute drops manna
On the purple waves no more.

TOM FOSTER'S WIFE.

BY EDNA DEAN PROCTOR.

I had just returned from a two years' stay in Europe, and was sauntering down Tremont street, in the golden September morning, when I saw my old friend, Tom Foster, get out of a horse-car a few steps in advance of me. I knew him in a moment, though we had hardly met since we were at Exeter Academy together, ten years before—room mates and blithe companions until we parted—I to go to Harvard, and he to enter his father's store, the well-known house of Foster & Co., Pearl street. He was a merry, hearty, practical fellow, clear-skinned and robust as an Englishman, self-reliant and enterprising as New Hampshire birth and Boston training could make him. I always liked him; but he plunged into business and I into study, and so, without meaning it, we had almost lost sight of each other. He was an only child, and his parents spent their summers at their homestead in Greenland, near Portsmouth, and their winters in Boston.

As I said, I knew him in a moment. He had grown tall and stout, but the boy was still in his face, and with a flush of early feeling I sprang forward and caught him by the arm.

"Tom! How are you?"

He looked puzzled for a moment, and then, bursting into a laugh, he seized my hand in his strong grasp and exclaimed.

"Why, John Ralston, is this you? Where did you come from? I'm glad to see you my boy. Why, I haven't set eyes on you since we made that trip to Nahant, in your Freshman year. The truth is father was so poorly for a long time that I had everything to see to, and felt as if the world was on my shoulders. I did hear, though, about your college honors and your going to Germany; and I've often thought of you lately and wished to see you. Why, Jack, in spite of your weight and your beard and broad shoulders, I can't realize that ten years have gone since we were at Exeter together. We must talk over old times and now. When did you get back and what are your plans?"

"I came yesterday, and shall stay in the city, on account of a business matter, until next Tuesday. Then I am going home."

"Well, now, this is Saturday, and you can do nothing after three o'clock; come and spend Sunday with me in the country. I want to show you my wife."

"Your wife! Are you married, Tom?"

"Married nearly a year," said he, with a smile.

"You don't look very solemn over it."

"Solemn? It's the jolliest thing I ever did in my life. Meet me at the Eastern depot at four o'clock, and I'll tell you all about it on the way down."

We parted at the Winter street corner—he to go to his store, and I to the Parker House.

"How handsome Boston has grown," said I, glancing at the fine buildings and the Common, beautiful in the September sun.

"We think it a nice town," he replied, speaking with the moderate words and the perfect assurance of the Bostonian, to whom his city is the sum of all excellence and delight. "Remember, four o'clock." And he disappeared in the crowd.

"Tom married!" I said to myself, as I walked along. "I dare say it's to his father's pretty ward, Clara Maitland, whom I saw when I spent the day there eleven years ago. I remember what long curls she had and how fond she seemed of him. Yes, I dare say it's to Clara. I hope, though, she hasn't grown up into one of those delicate young ladies, good for nothing but to display the latest fashions, and waltz a little, and torture the piano. Better some rosy, sturdy German Gretchen than a poor doll like them. It would be a shame for Tom, with his splendid physique and vigorous brain, to be tied for life to such a woman!" And then, turning down School street, my thoughts wandered off to a blue-eyed girl I had loved for many a year—a girl who was not satisfied with the small triumphs of the croquet-ground, but who could send an arrow straight home to the mark; and climb the hills with me, her step light and free as the deer's in the glade below; and hold a steady oar in our boat on the river, and swim ashore if need should be; and then, when walk or row was over, who could sit down to a lunch of cold meat and bread and butter with an appetite keen as a young Indian's after a day's hunt; yes, and who knew how to be efficient in the kitchen and the rarest ornament of the parlor. How impatient I was to see her, the bewitching maiden whom a prince might have been proud to marry. And again I said to myself, as I went up the Parker House steps: "I do hope Tom hasn't made a fool of himself!"

Four o'clock found me at the station; and a moment later in walked Tom, carrying a basket filled with Jersey peaches.

"They don't grow in Greenland," said he, tucking the paper down over the fruit. "Come this way." I followed him, and we had just seated ourselves comfortably in the car when the train moved off.

"Now for the story, Tom," said I, as we crossed the bridge and caught the breeze cool from the sea. "But I can guess beforehand the girl you married. It was Clara Maitland."

A shadow passed over Tom's face.

"Clara has been dead four years," said he "She inherited consumption from her mother. We did everything for her—took her to Minnesota and Florida; but it was no use She didn't live to see her eighteenth birthday."

"Poor Clara! She loved you dearly. Then I suppose you chose some Boston girl of your acquaintance?"

"Jack, you couldn't tell who Mrs. Tom Foster was if you should try from now till morning. I shall have to enlighten you," and moving the basket to one side and seating himself in his seat, he went on: "You know I have the misfortune to be an only child. After I was twenty-one, father and mother began to talk about my marrying. I had plenty of cousins, you know, and we always had young ladies going in and out of the house; but while Clara lived she was company for me, and after she died I was full of business, and didn't trouble myself about matrimony. To tell the truth, Jack, I didn't fancy the girls. Perhaps I was unfortunate in my acquaintances, but they seemed to me all curls and flounces and furbelows, and I would as soon have thought of marrying a fashion plate as one of these elaborate creatures. I don't object to style, I like it But you can see fine gowns and bonnets any day in the Washington street window, and my ideal of a woman was one whose dress is her least attraction."

"Do you recollect father's former partner, Adam Lane? He's a clever old gentleman and a millionaire, and father has the greatest liking and respect for him He has two daughters—one married years ago, and the other, much younger, father fixed upon as a desirable wife for me I rather think the two fancies had talked it over together, at any rate, Miss Matilda came to Greenland for a long summer visit. She is an amiable girl, but so petted and spoiled that she is good for nothing—undeveloped in mind and body. She looked very gay in the evenings, attired in Jordan, Marsh & Co's latest importations. But she was always late at breakfast, she didn't dare to ride on horseback, she couldn't take a walk without stopping to rest on every stone, and once, when I asked her if she had read the account of the battle of Sedan, she looked up, in her childish way, and said "No, Mr Foster Newspapers are so tiresome.' Bless me what should I have done with such a baby?

A year ago this summer I was very much confined at the store, and, when August came, instead of spending the whole month at home, I thought I would have a little change, and so I went down for a fortnight to the Cliff House, on —— Beach. It's a quiet, pleasant resort, and you always find from fifty to one hundred people there during the season. The landlord is a good fellow and a distant relative of mine. I thought he looked flurried, when I went in, and after a few minutes he took me to one side and said

'Tom, you've come at an unlucky time. I had a good cook that I got from Boston, at twenty dollars a week; but she's a high tempered woman. Last evening she quarreled with her assistants, this morning the breakfast was all in confusion, and now she's packing her trunk to leave by the next train. In two or three days I can probably get another one down in her place; but what we're to do meanwhile I don't know.

"But, Norton," said I, "isn't there some one near or in the house who can take it?"

"I doubt it," he replied. "I've half a dozen girls from the vicinity doing up stairs work—one of them from your town, the best waiter in the dining room But I suppose all of them would either be afraid of the responsibility, or think it beneath them to turn cook; though they would have plenty of help, and earn twenty dollars where they now get three."

"Who's here from Greenland?" I asked, for I knew something of almost every one in the place.

"Mary Lyford."

"Mary Lyford? A black eyed, light footed girl, about twenty years old, with two brothers in Colorado, and her father a farmer over toward Stratham?"

"Yes, the very same."

"Why, she's the prettiest girl in Greenland—at least, I thought so two years ago, when I danced with her at the Thanksgiving party in the village; and I heard last fall that she took the prize at the Manchester Fair for the best loaf of bread. But why is she here?"

"Oh, you know farmers haven't much ready money, and I suppose she wanted to earn something for herself, and to come to the beach, like the rest of us. You say she took the premium for her bread. I believe I'll go into the dining room and propose to give the cook's place to any one of the girls who would like it and who feels competent to take it. I must do something," and, looking at the watch, he went out.

Ten minutes later he came back, clapping his hands, and exclaimed.

"Mary Lyford says she'll try it."

"Hurrah for Greenland," cried I. "Isn't that plucky? By Jove! I hope she'll succeed, and I believe she will."

"You mustn't expect much to-day," said Norton. "Things are all topsy-turvy in the kitchen, and it'll take some time to get them straightened out."

Just then a new arrival claimed his attention, and with a serener face he turned away.

Dinner was poor that day; supper was little better. And, in spite of Norton's caution, I began to be afraid that Greenland was going down. But the next morning, what a breakfast we had—juicy steaks, hot potatoes, delicious rolls and corn-bread, griddle cakes that melted in your mouth, and coffee that had lost none of its aroma in the making. Thenceforth every meal was a triumph, The guests praised the table, and hastened to their seats at the first sound of the bell. Norton was radiant with satisfaction, and I was as pleased as if I had been landlord or cook myself. Several times I sent my compliments and congratulations to Mary; but she was so constantly occupied that I had never had a glimpse of her till the night before I was to leave. I was dancing in the parlor, and had just lead a young lady of the Matilda Lane stamp to her mamma, when I saw Mary standing with the dining-room girls on the piazza. I went out, and, shaking her cordially by the hand, told her how interested I had been in her success, and how proud I was to find a Greenland girl so accomplished. She blushed, and thanked me, and said, in a modest way that she was very glad if we were all suited; and then Norton came up and expressed his entire gratification with what she had done. As she stood there in a white piqué dress; with a scarlet bow at her throat, and her dark hair neatly arranged, she looked every inch a lady.

"Do me the favor, Miss Lyford," said I, "to dance the next cotillion with me."

"Ah! Mr. Foster," she replied, looking archly at Norton, "that isn't expected of the help."

"The help!" I said, indignantly. "You are the queen of the establishment, and I invite you to dance, and no doen Mr. Norton."

"Certainly I do," he answered. "Go and show the company that you are at home in the parlor as well as the kitchen." So, smiling and blushing, she took my arm.

"Didn't we make a sensation when we went in! Perhaps there was no fellow there with a better 'social position' (you know the phrase) than I; and I had been quite a favorite with the ladies. You should have seen them when we took our places on the floor! Some laughed, some frowned, some whispered to their neighbors; but I paid not the slightest attention to it all, and Mary looked so pretty, and went through the dance with such grace and dignity, that before it was over I believe all regarded her with admiration. I didn't wait for comments, but escorted her out as if she had been the belle of Boston."

"Good-night, Miss Lyford," I said, when we reached the hall. "I am going in the morning; but I shall see you again when you get back to Greenland."

"'Good night, Mr. Foster,' she replied 'I thank you for your kindness.' Then she added, laughing. 'Have you any orders for breakfast?'

"'Why, yes. I should like to remember you by a plate of such muffins as we had yesterday.'

"'You shall have them, sir,' she said, as she disappeared in the doorway. And have them I did.

"Three weeks later Mary came home to Greenland, with more than a hundred dollars in her purse and a fame that was worth a thousand. I went to see her at her father's house. I found her everyway excellent and lovely; and the end was that at Christmas we were married."

"Glorious!" I exclaimed. Give me your hand, Tom! I was afraid you had been taken in by some Matilda Lane."

"Do you think I am a fool?" he said.

Then I told him of my own choice, and I was still talking when the train stopped at the Greenland station

We soon arrived at his hospitable home. His wife was all he had pictured her, a refined, intelligent, handsome woman, who would develop and grow into attractiveness, every year of her life. After a merry evening in their pleasant parlor, I went to bed, and dreamed that the Millennium had come, and that all women were like my blue-eyed girl and Mrs. Tom. Foster.—N. Y. Independent

About a week since, an old resident on the Owvitz, about thirteen miles north from Kalama, named Galloway, while unyoking a couple of wildish young oxen, was struck by one of them with horns and yoke in such a manner as to break two of his ribs beside other bruises.

AMUSING.—The plan adopted by the Hon. John Eaton, National Commissioner of Education, of asking the recipients of the Bureau's publications to give their occupations as well as addresses on the return acknowledgements, is sometimes improved as an opportunity for expressing the pride and peculiarities of human nature For instance: an accomplished lady in San Francisco, and a favorite contributor to the press of that city, keeps her literary pursuit completely from view, but brings her womanhood out in bold relief as follows "Wife and mother!!" A second lady, of not a little grit as well as grace, in Westboro, Mass., shows that she is in the same business as the first, after this manner "Mother of five children!" The Commissioner is fully satisfied as to the deserts of these persons, and will see that their names are kept on the lists as entitled to reports, the same as in all cases where the occupation given warrants it. But, as to the following case down in Houston Texas, it is doubtful whether the applicant has much time to spare upon solid books, as he details his occupation in this way "Alderman, notary public, school commissioner, gentleman of leisure and florist" The trailing autographs of the aged are a feature of the signatures, and they are frequently accompanied with statements of long service in the cause of education. One of them, after stating that he had passed his threescore years an active citizen of Nashville, says: "Have never used tobacco or whisky, &c., never was sick." A septuagenarian in Cincinnati sends his photograph, and prides his white hairs upon the fact that he was "born forty miles north of the White mountains."

Additional Issues of Currency.

The above question has been extensively agitated throughout the country, and many writers have endeavored to solve the question as to how much currency is required to properly meet the demands of business This problem is one of a very difficult solution under the best of circumstances, and the difficulty is increased when our currency is irredeemable. Many are disposed to regard the recurring periods of stringency in the Money market as showing conclusively that there is need of more currency, but we think there is good reason to doubt whether such disturbances afford a safe criterion by which to judge The issue by the Government of more currency, on such a demand, would, moreover, have but a temporary effect as a cure for stringency. A brief period of prosperity would doubtless ensue, prices would advance still higher, and speculation and over trading make more rapid strides, but when the increase of money should have been fully absorbed, another period of stringency would appear, with similar if not more urgent demands for help from the same quarter. Stringency arising from such causes should be left to seek its cure in the operation of natural laws and the force of circumstances

The Boston Advertiser suggests, in this connection, whether it would not be worth while to inquire whether the people of this country are not generally becoming in a shade too enterprising and ambitious, and doing too much business in proportion to their capital? Whether we are not building too many railroads and engaging in too many great enterprises in proportion to our means, and whether from the character of our means we are not paying too much for what we get? Had we better do less and have more to do with, or continue to increase our expenses and grumble because we cannot readily meet them? Is it better to make our currency better and better until it becomes as good as cash, or to water it by a continuous infusion of credit until such a consummation shall perforce have to be abandoned?

But if from any cause Congress should authorize the addition of even a hundred millions to the currency, it is not easy to see how the people are to obtain possession of it in a time of stringency except by resorting to a sale of the bonds of the government, which course is now already open to them. The money, if landed, is not to be given to them, of course, and as disbursements by the government on account of its ruinous expenses are naturally growing less rather than greater, it would not have occasion to trench upon the new issue on that account, as its ordinary fund is already sufficient to more than meet expenses. No practicable way to get the extra issue therefore remains but for the government to buy bonds before maturity, paying therefor in greenbacks. Although to a certain extent that might seem to be an object for the government, as distinguished from the people, the advantage to the people themselves would seem to be somewhat problematical, for they would be exchanging an obligation of the government bearing interest for a similar obligation bearing no interest.

Puget Sound Exports.

The following were the amounts of exports of Puget Sound District for the month of October, 1872, $95,000, viz:

To Chili	$ 2,898
To Peru	28,280
To British Columbia	34,128
Total	$95,000
Vessels entered	33
Voyaging coastwise	14
Voyaging foreign	4
Vessels cleared	32
Voyaging coastwise	5
Voyaging foreign	4
Imports	$16,101

Miscellaneous.

It is reported that a San Francisco gentleman is about to establish a new Savings and Loan Bank in that city.

The extremely cold weather and deep snow in Eastern Oregon have materially advanced the price of feed in that section.

A corner recently gotten up in Chicago by the Eastern dealers, Wm Young & Co, greatly depressed the trade in that city and "cornered" the gentlemen up in a manner similar to the wheat corner in the same city a few months ago.

Produce Market.

Our produce market is without important change. A considerable amount of Flour will be shipped for San Francisco by the outgoing steamer, to morrow. Wheat is reported a little more active in the interior, but no large transactions have occurred This evening's telegrams from San Francisco note a little better condition in the market there.

Shipping Intelligence.

The steamship John L. Stephens will sail for San Francisco to-morrow morning.

The Annie M. Small, hence for Liverpool with wheat, arrived there on the 6th inst.

The bark Hamlin is receiving cargo at Liverpool of assorted merchandize for this place.

The bark Kosmos will be towed down the river to-morrow morning to complete cargo for Liverpool

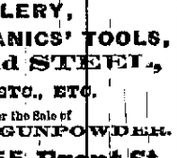
DR. C. G GLASS

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.

NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

623 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.



DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice at his Dispensary, 623 Kearny street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him.

The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and delighted faces and their broken down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible, life-destroying maladies—see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Dr. GIBBON, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate case, without mercury or any injurious drugs It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill to cure all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combated by scientific medical measures, viz. Hollow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused ideas, blunted intellect, loss of memory, indolence in study, approaching stammerer, a dislike to form new acquaintances, disposition to avoid society, loss of memory, lactic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monumania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them nor delay to obtain immediate relief.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions. By inclosing Ten Dollars coin, in registered letter through the Postoffice or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union.

All communications strictly confidential.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who, with bogus sworn-to certificates, dupe the unwary some of whom are well-to-do doctors, whose names are found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places, are tradesmen and became too lazy too work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry—if you do not you nothing, and may save you many regrets; for the advertising physician in eight cases out of ten are beggars, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus titles, certificates, pretended patients' letters, etc. Dr. Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his offices of his ability to cure diseases that he proposes to cure.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearney street, corner Commercial, San Francisco, Post Office Box 1,957.

REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1,957 ON THE LETTER. Consultation FREE.
